Lab

Who we are...

LTL is the Learning Technologies Lab in the Faculty of Health Sciences, dedicated to the e-learning needs of our faculty members.

What we do...

LTL provides technical advice and assistance, development opportunities, consultations and resources to enable faculty, staff, and community health professionals to integrate technologies effectively in teaching and learning.

How we can help...

Workshops, consultations, research, software, equipment, and more.

Take a look inside!

How LTL can help...

Get Your Hands Dirty in Our Software Sandbox

Learning to use new technologies can be intimidating. Our user-friendly computer lab encourages users to play, experiment, and even make mistakes, as they hone their ed tech skills. Staff are on hand to help with any technical difficulties.

Jump into the sandbox today: Visit us at HSC 4N55b.

And keep your eye out for the pilot launch of LTL's Virtual Software Sandbox, offering you all the functionality of our physical lab from the comfort of your own home or office!

Software Includes:

- Articulate Studio & Storyline
- Camtasia Studio
- Snag-It
- Adobe Creative Cloud
- ...And More!

Professional Development in a Flexible Online Environment

We know you've got a busy schedule, so LTL and the Program for Faculty Development are working to make your path to personal and professional development more accessible than ever!

Employing the core principles of eLearning theory, LTL has helped to develop a number of unique learning opportunities, including:

- Fully-facilitated and non-facilitated credentialed online courses
- Self-guided modules covering specific e-learning topics
- Software/equipment help

Check in regularly with LTL (ltl.mcmaster.ca) and the Program for Faculty Development (fhs.mcmaster.ca/facdev/) for new content!

Researching Your Technology Enhanced Learning

LTL is committed to the effective use of technology in teaching and learning. We provide consultation and assistance for researching technology related initiatives.

Customized Offerings to Fit All Your Ed Tech Needs
