- ☞ Acquire an understanding of the history/background of PBL at McMaster University
- ☞ Recognize and comprehend the different roles of a PBL tutor
- ☞ Acquire important 'take home and use' tutoring skills, knowledge and behaviours

BEST: 3 hrs.

Facilitators:

Lorie Shimmell, Director of Clinical Education (MScOT), School of Rehabilitation Science. She teaches across the curriculum with focus on clinical education, including the development of new and innovative areas of practice in clinical learning. Educational research includes: reflective journaling in the development of OT competencies, preparation with student occupational therapists for international placement experiences, and capacity building in clinical education. Lorie "grew up" professionally in the PBL milieu and continues its use in all aspects of her teaching.

Edwin Ho, Staff Anesthesiologist, HHSC and Assistant Clinical Professor, McMaster University. He is actively involved with medical education and has been tutoring in the Medical Foundations curriculum for several years. He also completed his medical school here at McMaster so he has the unique perspective of having extensive PBL experience both as a student and a tutor.
